Annie L. Nichols

[Scrapbook and photo album]: "Memories of my School Days" of an African-American woman from Alcorn State University

New York: C.R. Gibson & Company (circa 1932)

$650

String-tied oblong octavo. 100pp. (about half are used). Burgundy cloth boards. Owner's name inside front board, boards a bit rubbed and faded, very good. An album filled with holographic annotations and original photographs, this scrapbook records a young African-American woman's experiences attending Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College (renamed Alcorn State University in 1974) in the late 1920s and early '30s. Alcorn, a historically black comprehensive land-grant institution in Lorman, Mississippi, offered both high school and college courses at the time, and Nichols took part in both (a laid-in holographic letter from her father suggests she later continued her education at Tennessee State University in Nashville).

"Greetings.."

I don't mind
getting them if they all like this from Little Henry.

I'm not mistaken
in being in my seat and it's only the way we'll when we're together.

IN MY VALENTINE CANOE
THERE IS ROOM FOR ONLY TWO

I hope this will soon come true
in Moon Lake (Henry Pass)

MY SCHOOL

"Ma école j'aimé."

For the past five (5) scholastic years my school has been Stean A. and M. Galloway
It is located nine miles from the nearest railroad in the most beautiful spot imaginable. It is especially beautiful in the spring of the year when the trees filled with moss are turning green.

My school is improving very much each year. There have been several new buildings added that make it a much better and comfortable one.
The faculty is especially good leading fair with each student. It is a fine school and I think it wonderful.
