New York: Harlem Hospital School of Nursing 1946

Quarto. 64pp., illustrated from photographs. Red pebble-grained cloth over boards. Amateurishly repaired along the spine with tape, student inscriptions, cloth worn, a fair only but sound and complete copy. Yearbook for a nursing school, the students exclusively African-American women, and the staff and faculty mostly so. Founded in 1923 in order to address the lack of institutions in New York training black nurses. OCLC locates no copies, for any year.
