Grace Greenwood a.k.a.
Sara Jane Clark Lippincott

[Carte de visite]: Grace Greenwood

New York: Saronywwew

Carte de visite. Approximately 2¼" x 3¾". Albumen print on card stock. A trifle soiled at the margins, else a clear and very near fine image with the corners nice. Signed by Greenwood in the margin beneath her portrait. A nice image of the New York-born, Pennsylvania-raised American author, poet, and lecturer and advocate for social reform. A successful author from a young age, Greenwood was the first woman reporter on payroll of the New York Times and was an accepted member for the New York literary world. She was a staunch advocate of abolition and women's rights, supporting Susan B. Anthony in her fight for suffrage. Abraham Lincoln referred to her as "Grace Greenwood the Patriot". Lippincott took her pseudonym from the Greenwood Academy, a school for women that she attended. While her letters occasionally appear on the market, signed photographs are very scarce.
