*The Hansone Party
On board*

A photo album kept by a woman while traveling in Europe in 1910. The album shows a group of well-to-do women in a tour group around Europe, beginning with their ocean liner trip overseas in September of 1910 on the S.S. Oceania, Italian Line. They started in Naples, went on a “drive” in a horse and carriage, visited the National Museum, and the volcano, Solfatara. They followed this with a trip to Pompeii with photos of well-dressed women walking through the ancient ruins of the city, complete with fancy hats and the occasional parasol. The company eventually traveled to Rome and Venice with photos of the women in gondolas and posing in Saint Mark’s square. Continuing on their excursion they visited Paris, Germany, and Switzerland. The photos include a carriage ride to Versailles, the ruins of Heidelberg Castle, and wonderful views of the Alps. On the return trip they stopped in England and watched the guards at St. James’ Palace.

The final section of photographs is from travels in the United States between 1922 and 1924 as well as a few family snapshots. They include a car journey to the Berkshires, visiting the Hotel Aspinwall in Lenox, Massachusetts, and a zoo in Chevy Chase, Maryland. The photos show women posing around their car, taking silly candid photos, and lounging on rocks and trees in various outdoor settings.

A modest but interesting collection of a women’s tour group. [BTC#400094]
