A photo album of amateur photography by Ronald A. Wilcox while serving with the Peace Corps in the Philippines from 1964-1966. During his time there he was formally adopted by a family in the village of Samoki. The album shows the villagers from Samoki and Bugnay, specifically, in day to day activities, caring for children, working in fields, and women balancing baskets on their heads. Children are seen in their mother's arms and playing with other children. One photo shows little girls weaving reeds in each other's hair. Another photo shows a group of young men smiling and working in a field wearing woven straw over their shoulders. One photo shows an American, possibly a Peace Corps member with Wilcox, using a loom with a group of villagers.

An interesting collection of amateur photography documenting Ronald Wilcox's time with the Samoki villagers of the Philippines. [BTC#401496]
