Diploma. 13½" x 10¾". Partially printed document. Letterpress halftone diploma with portraits of John Mercer Langston and Frederick Douglass. Unused. Old vertical bend, a little foxing and soiling, a very good or better example. Founded in 1906 by its Principal David N. Kinney, the Academy was a small privately-conducted elementary day school with all black faculty and students that lasted until about 1914, after which we could find little about it. Nevertheless an attractive and visually pleasing artifact from a little-known African-American school.
