Observations on the Arrested Twin Development of Jean Battista Dos Santos, Born at Faro in Portugal in 1846

Edinburgh [and] London: Maclachlan And Stewart [and] Robert Hardwicke 1866

$450

First edition. Octavo. 12pp. Later decorated wrappers. Illustrated by Woodcuts (with two rather graphic illustrations). Near fine. Dos Santos was “The Three Legged Man” or “The Man With Two Swords” due to his dual genitalia, which were fused to a third limb. He is popular even today in certain regions of the blogosphere. Laid in is a typed note signed by book dealer James Tait Goodrich sending the pamphlet to Lee Ash. Offprint from the Edinburgh Medical Journal. OCLC locates only four copies; only one in the U.S. [BTC#401967]
