

BETWEEN THE COVERS RARE BOOKS

112 Nicholson Rd, Gloucester City, NJ 08030 (856) 456-8008 betweenthecovers.com

---

Janie Beatrice Redwine
School scrapbook and photo album of an African-American Nurse

Washington, D.C.: 1932

Oblong quarto. Green cloth. Hinges loose, some modest spotting and staining, a few elements damaged or lacking but pleasing and overall very good. A commercially printed “graduation book” that has been transformed into a makeshift yearbook for the Class of 1932 of the Freedmen’s Hospital School for Nurses affiliated with Howard University in Washington, D.C. by graduate Janie Redwine.

Louise

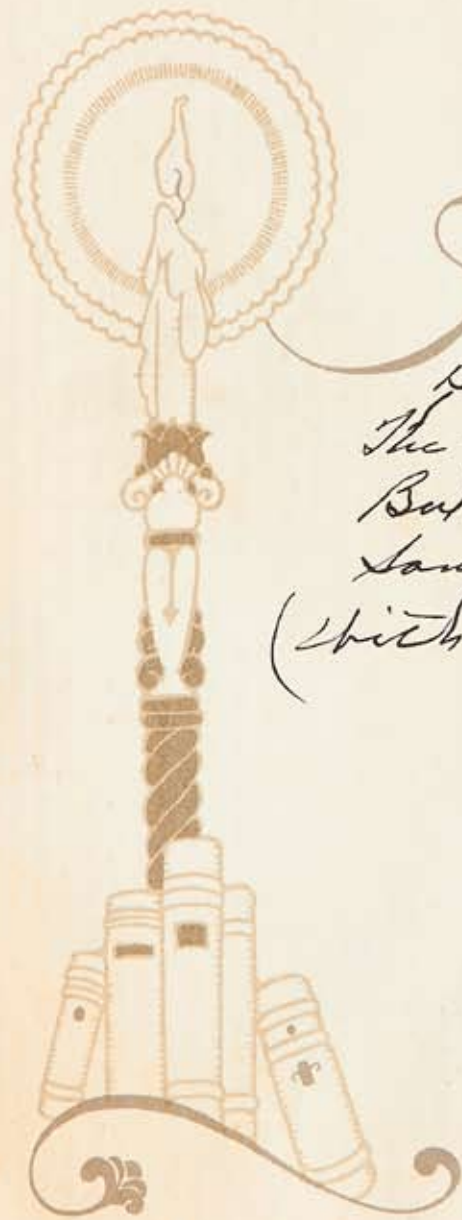

Mashy
Edith
Louise

The Georgia-born Redwine entered the school in 1929. She has used this book as a combination scrapbook and photo album, revolving largely around her years at the school, and particularly around the events surrounding her graduation. As well as the calling cards of 25 of her classmates (from the total class of 31 students), she has also included numerous clippings, handwritten accounts of several balls, tea parties, and picnics given to the graduates, several pages of inscriptions from classmates, staff members, doctors, and nurses from the Hospital. The book is illustrated throughout with 55 mostly sepia-toned gelatin silver snapshots of various sizes, mostly in the area of 4½" x 3". The snaps show the nurse graduates in uniforms and capes, attending on the wards, and clowning around. Others show male doctors or attendants dressed in white. Also included are programs for Commencement and other activities, graduation cards, lists of her classmates names and addresses, and even a section devoted to her favorite movies.

In her accounts of the various activities, it is clear that Redwine was ecstatic about becoming a nurse, and filled with enthusiasm for her future career. She makes clear in several places that June 3rd, 1932, the day after her graduation, is the most important day in her life. On that day she married Dr. Cleveland L. Jackson, a graduate of Howard University's School of Medicine in Leesburg, Virginia. Sadly she died in 1938 at the age of 29. A nice documentation of the school experience of a young African-American nurse. [BTC#402392]

The Faculty

Aug. 6/32.

Be still your heart and cease refining,
Behind the Sun is the sun still shining.
The vines still to the moldering ~~the~~ <sup>the</sup> ~~leaves~~ <sup>leaves</sup> fall;
But with each gust the dead leaves fall.
Some days must be dark and dreary,
(with apologies)

W. B. F. Jones
Res. Asst. Surgeon
Freedmen's Hosp.

F.H.T.S.
1929

6/28/32

8/3/32

Fancy the world a hill lass.
Look where the millions stop.
You'll find the crowd at the base lass
There is plenty of room at the top.

Sincerely,
Mrs Ruby J. Cellomore Powers, R.N.
409 E. Street N.E.
Washington D.C.

Please keep this in mind always
"To love and not to speak of love is like the infinite sadness of an unfinished
Song"

E. G. Trotter Jr. M.D.

169 Claremont Ave.
Jersey City N.J.

Friendship is a favored thing
For Muse to praise and Poet sing;
Nor time nor space combined can sever
Friends of mine: they're friends forever.

Lester M. Archambeau
6.14.32

A smile, a ripple of laughter, — a saucy nod of the head,
Nights of talk, hopes ambitions, — a patient, black silk,
or "He's dead!"
Then "Jack", — love, bliss, kisses, loneliness, a sigh
This my memory of well-spent nights last July.

127 V St. N.W.
Washington D.C.

Joseph Q. Tulloh
6-15-'32

My Supts.

Frank Jones.

Charlie and Jenny.

Marie
Flo.
Ludby.

Flo.
Ludby.

Lillian Jewett.

Rudy.

Shaw
Kraff
Brent
Smith

Rudy
Maui
Luelle
J.L.

Jennie
Bliss
Stetson
Brown
Bertie
M. Morris

