BROOKLYN, New York, March 23rd 1898

Dear Mrs. Farris,

Your afternoon was so crowded on Monday that I had no chance to say the personal word that was in my mind papers. I am so sorry - more than I can say - that we have had to relinquish your faithful and valuable services and that you are willing you would certainly have had a triumphant re-election year after year to the end of time! But you know what a heavy burden it has been, and am glad that you are free to do as you please. What less narrow and equally honorable position.

Our personal relations have been so delightful that I feel it to thank you for, and so

With much love, your friend

[Archive]: Brooklyn Woman's Club Letters
Brooklyn, New York: 1889-1930 $200

A small archive of ephemera from the Brooklyn Woman's Club from the late 1800s. All items are about near fine with some discoloring. The collection includes a letter to Mrs. Olive F. Farris, the treasurer of the club in the late 1880s, a card from a twentieth anniversary celebration for the Woman's Club, a pamphlet of the rule and by laws of the organization, and a later typed letter from the funeral of a Woman's Club member in 1930.

A modest but nice collection of ephemera surrounding the Brooklyn Women's Club. [BTC#424207]
