Q What was Kerensky thinking just before his government fell?

John Reed had the last interview with him.

Q How did the Bolsheviki make up their minds to revolt?

John Reed knows what went on in the secret Bolshevik Conference of October 23, 1917.

Q How would you like to have seen the French Revolution?

Q How would you like to have a personal record written by a trained reporter of the days of August, 1789, when all Paris rose and marched upon Versailles? A day-by-day account of the Fall of 1793 when "The Terror" is the order of the day?

Q How would you like to have seen the American Revolution? How would you like to read the inside story of the Boston Tea Party? Or what went on day by day and hour by hour during the bitter winter nights at Valley Forge?

Would you like to see the Bolshevik Revolution?

Q This book is a moving picture of those thrilling days in Petrograd. It is a serious attempt to tell all the details about the Bolshevik coup d'etat. It will be used as an original source by historians of the great Russian Revolution.
